U.K. Debaters Battle McGill

NFCUS Yawns Way Through First Sessions

SASKATOON (CUP) — Delegates to the National Federation of Canadian University Students Conference were told yesterday that they should develop the habit of expressing ideas, and not be lumps of putty.

Professor T. H. Qualter of the University of Saskatchewan went on to say that "Canadian students should drop the silly idea that politics are immoral. You should be excitable, overidealistic, and certainly the vocal conscience of the nation for things which are worth fighting for."

Professor Qualter was a member of a panel which was discussing "The Role of a National Union of students in International Affairs."

NEVER NEUTRAL

Pointing out the often very active student participation in other countries, he told the students they should be "radical or reactionary, but never neutral."

Commenting on Professor Qualter's statements, McGill's NFCUS Chairman Roy Heenan said "I am distressed by our defensive standpoint (which other student delegates had taken). We have been active in such spheres, but we must define the word 'political' and where there are internal political difficulties."

The 23rd annual NFCUS started on Tuesday as over 100 delegates, observers and guests from 32 Canadian universities and several foreign countries gathered at the University of Saskatchewan for the Congress' opening session.

OBSERVERS INVITED

The Congress approved a resolution which invited observers from Victoria College in British Columbia and Sherbrooke University in Quebec to attend the conference. Both universities are potential NFCUS members, and the Congress authorized the executive "to give such financial aid as may be necessary" to ensure that the two universities sent observers to the Congress.

This year's Congress will be the largest ever held by NFCUS.

Two observers have caused a great deal of interest. They have not arrived yet in Saskatoon and apparently no one really knows if they will arrive at all.

One is a representative of the USSR Students' Council. As yet he has not been granted a Canadian visa. The second is the President of the Algerian Students Federation, and where he is, no one knows.

Both are expected to be keynote speakers in what is shaping up to be a squabble over the exact role which NFCUS should play in international student affairs.

Stuart Smith and Michael Kinsman will represent McGill tonight in a debate with a visiting team from the United Kingdom. The debate will take place at 8:30 pm in Redpath Hall. Tonight's topic will be "Resolved that Britain is pushing her colonies to independence too fast."

STUART SMITH

MICHAEL KINSMAN

The United Kingdom team will uphold the resolution while McGill takes the negative side.

The U.K. team will consist of James Gordon and Roger Tilbury. Gordon is a post-graduate student taking Education and Psychology at Glasgow University. He was President of the Students' Union there in 1958-59, as well as winner of the Individual Speaker's Prize in 1957.

Tilbury is an undergraduate at the University of Exeter. He is President of the Exeter University Musical Society and the Cercle Francals.

McGILL DEBATERS

McGill debater Stuart Smith is a second year medical student. He was one of last year's WUS scholars sent to Jamaica, and was President of the McGill Students' Union for 1957-58. He holds Gold A and Gold Key awards from the Debating Society and was also on the national advisory council of the Liberal Party.

Michael Kinsman, who will assist him in keeping the negative side, received his Master's degree in Philosophy last year from McGill. He was winner of the Papineau Cup for the best public speaker at McGill for 1959; during his undergraduate years he was President of the Literature Society and of the Philosophy Society.

MORE WIT

The debate will be carried out in the so-called English style, which, as opposed to the American method, allows a greater display of wit and versatility on the part of the speaker. By this method, success depends not so much on facts and statistics, but on the actual speaking talent of the debater.

The U.K. team are repaying the visit of Marvin Gameroff and Bryce Weir, who last year made a similar round of English and Scottish Universities. In fact Gameroff will be chairman of tonight's debate.

JAMES GORDON

ROGER TILBURY

Debaters Begin Training Lectures For Novices

The Debating Union will commence its Training Lecture Series for novice debaters tomorrow at 1 p.m. in the Arts Building, Room W. 20.

Norman May will address the group on "Topic Analysis" and "Methods of Preparation" in a debate. May, a second year law student, is treasurer of the Debating Union and one of McGill's top debaters.

This lecture series is sponsored by the Novice Training Program and all prospective debaters are invited to attend.

Shall the Ladies Join Us?

Decision making goes hand in hand with planning. In fact, one of the dictionary definitions of planning is "to decide in advance". Now that planning for a new Union is once again in progress, there will be a period of much soul searching and decision making on the part of student organizations involved. Many decisions will be of a petty nature — should the billiard room be 25 by 40 or 30 by 35 feet? Still others will be of a highly important class.

Undoubtedly the most important of the latter sort will be the question of full-fledged female participation in the new Union. As McGillians know we are presently blessed with a hopelessly antiquated and inadequate Union. Small wonder then that most women's activities are centered around Royal Victoria College. Female students are indeed fortunate that RVC provides them with superior social and recreational facilities in addition to fulfilling its prime purpose — that of a residence. But this should not be regarded as a permanent situation. Rather it is a stop-gap measure pending the appearance of a new Union.

With the building of a new Union the situation will change radically. Top grade, modern facilities sufficient to provide for all students are envisioned. Women students will have to face the fact that there will come the day when RVC will no longer be large enough to serve adequately both as a residence and as a center of extra-curricular female activity. A switch to the new Union would be the obvious solution.

But there is more than a question of convenience at stake. Women in the new Union is a question of principle. Segregation of the sexes ended at the public school level. Why renew it in university? No one would disagree that there is a definite need for all-women organizations such as the Women's Union at McGill. We do not propose it cease existing. What we do propose is that it continue on a more vibrant and dynamic basis, centering its activities as full partners in the new Union.

New York University recently completed a $250,000 survey on a very similar question. The result: "Co-education would make our students gentlemen... Our students as a whole have not had social experience... It would improve the social atmosphere".

Whatever the answer and whatever the reason the $250,000 question must be solved at McGill by the women themselves. We hope that they will see fit to banish Victorian prudery from twentieth-century McGill.

Blooeey Blooeey

It happens once a year. Some night there's a big smash in the Union with thousands it seems of students stuffed sardinelike in the three floors, while Daily editors cooped in their room upstairs doubtless inspired by the pushing mob bang out an incoherent editorial about all the riot to fill the column. This is it folks. And what a helluva surprise because it's raining cats and dogs we didn't think anyone would come on such a night as this but boy here they are they're flooding the place, join our club.

Where where up the stairs they go.

Panic on second floor but keep pushing and you'll get upstairs smoke gets in your eyes and the Red Wings are there looking silly in their efficient red jackets and virginal white skirts upstairs upstairs we go where:

They're having a ball in the ballroom on the stand four are jazzing, the pianist rests his cigarette on the keys which are supposed by tradition to be nicotine stained and amazingly it's true they really are. Hellish hot if they could bottle all that heat from the sweating bodies they could keep this building warm all winter the guy who wrote this editorial last year says looking over my shoulder that I'm copying him but that's not true and anyway we have to fill the column.

SECOND WEST ON COSTUME

Sir,
Residents of Second West R.V.C. have recently been discussing the costume of the non-resident women students of McGill.

Our attention was again focused on this point as a result of Monday's edition of the Daily. The article "The 2:30 Cinderellas" was in agreement with our opinions on the matter.

To put it bluntly, we think the majority of the female students on the campus dress as though they were going to a cocktail party instead of a nine o'clock lecture. May we remind you that we go to college to study not to parade around in fashions.

It has been remarked that R.V.C. girls dress very casually, but we feel that this is more in keeping with the trend of university life. Why should girls dress fit to kill (especially their feet) for boys who couldn't care less.

We think that it is inappropriate for girls of 16, 17, and 18 to appear in what could well be their mother's clothes.

Perhaps all girls, resident and non-resident, are not in agreement with our theory; however we are comfortable. Are they?

Moore to Give Address On Pakistan Tonight

Dr. J.O. Moore, Director of the School of Social Work, will deliver an address illustrated by colour slides on the subject of his "Experiences in East Pakistan." The address will commence tonight at 8 pm in the Auditorium of the Young Women's Christian Association, 1355 Dorchester West.

Under the auspices of the Technical Assistance Administration of United Nations, Dr. Moore has spent one year and adviser to the Government of East Pakistan establishing schools of Social Work in that country.

After majoring in Psychiatric Social Work at the University of Denver, Colorado, Dr. Moore received his doctorate in education from Columbia University. For over thirty years he has been a leader in the field of social work and education in many countries.

This evening's program has been arranged by the Montreal Committee of the International Conference on Social Work.

The purpose of SAM is to broaden the outlook of students who intend to go into business and allied fields. To this end, a complete program of speakers, industrial tours, movies, conferences and newsletters is being planned.

KOMMENTS

by Henry MINTZBERG
Sports Editor

Starting Note: We just saw the new cheerleaderettes as they were picked. We approve. Friday night (against Queen's) will feature the unveiling of the Redmen (who should take Queen's) and the new cheerleaderettes. The rest of this column will feature a variety of pessimism.

DREAM TEAM

On the minds of most is the present plight of the Redmen. Optimism in May has subsided into what is best explained by the 42-1 loss to Toronto last Saturday. The story is actually very simple. 55 men were invited to the Redmen camp to try out for the team. Of this number, 12 failed to obtain passing grades in the spring, 13 could not play for a variety of reasons, and two decided not to attend the Sherbrooke Street campus. The 13 are -

Chuck Arnold (decided not to play after receiving concussion last year); Rae Brown (Medical studies too time consuming); Wally Bulchak (bad brain concussion in '58 ended his football days); Mike Byrne (lost thesis, could not afford time); Terry Dingle (too busy in third year Law); Jimmy Grant (bad knee; could become much worse on the gridiron); Tom Hall (Studies; MAY PLAY THOUGH); Ken Donovan (Concussion also); Ed Smith and Don Campbell (Knee injuries); Pete Hosiak (4th year Engineering to concentrate on); Tom Skypcek and Paul Brady (ineligible).

In addition, Dan Fanning and Ed DeGraw, both excellent prospects, were accepted at McGill, but decided to continue their studies elsewhere.

This has not been a choice of the Intercollegiate all-time "dream team"; this is what McGill might have had. Anyone for boxes and boxes of Kleenex?

INELIGIBILITY

The Canadian Intercollegiate Athletic Union Constitution calls By-Law VI "ELIGIBILITY". We prefer to call it INELIGIBILITY. We count 18 paragraphs, some of which are logical, a few of which are absurd, some which require a Law degree to interpretate, and a few which apply to particular colleges. Basically, the potential football player should be in second year of a four year course, first year of a three year course, in good standing, an amateur, etc. We are interested in the one that says in about 75 words that if a student is entering post-graduate school, he must hold a degree in order to play football. We have said it before and we will say it again. — You are usually eligible in second year of University if you are an undergraduate, but may be ineligible in post graduate school. Because of this clause (number 6.5.3.) the Red and White suffer year after year. May we suggest that ANY non-professional in good standing with the University should be eligible!

Now that we are worked up to a boil (32 degrees F and .0888 lb./sq. in.) let's go on to Toronto Weekend. This greatest of institutions died this year (it may be resurrected next year). Everyone talks about student apathy. Well, we now have an opportunity to place the blame on others. A Friday night game in Toronto meant -

1. Students were forced to take the early train - all Friday lectures were missed.
2. The activities did not take place over a weekend. There was nothing to look forward to on Saturday.
3. All girls in RVC, including cheerleaderettes and those in the band, were not permitted to go this year.

Don't let the situation worry you though. The general consensus of opinion is that night football (in Toronto, anyways) was a flop. The crowd was no larger than last year, and too many people were unhappy. So don't expect to see too much college football at night next year. (McGill tries it out on tomorrow with a dance to follow).

MANAGERS

Many of us are not great athletes — we prefer to concentrate on a form other than participation. For some, it is the student newspaper, for others it is a managerial post. Seven managers are still needed. The job is not time-consuming but very enjoyable. Travelling with the team is included with many of the sports. Those who wish to manage the Senior Basketball, Boxing, Soccer, Intermediate Football, Hockey, Basketball, or Rugby team can speak to Mr. Forsyth at the Gym or anyone on the IAC. (ourselves included)

POOR OLD MCGILL

We will end this column on an interesting note of pessimism. McGill has not won a major title since 1940. That year the Hockey team came up with the big one. For a third of a basketball crown we have to go back to 1939 when were involved in a three-way tie, and for a complete title the year was 1934. Everyone knows that is was 1938 when the Yates Trophy (Football) breathed Montreal air.

See Shapelies Friday!

by YVETTE HOCH

M-C-G-I-L-I ! ! ! Four new young shapelies will cheer into action on the field this Friday night at the football game against Queens.

Marion English, Ann Hewitt, Nancy Reid, and Melodie Caron were chosen by a panel of five judges to join Derry Allen, Sally Boyd, and Ann Dixon on the cheering squad this fall.

Twenty-eight young hopefuls from 2nd and 3rd years turned out for the tryout yesterday afternoon at RVC gym; some with former experience, some without, some better, some worse, but all equally determined.

The girls had been practicing for over a week to get into shape (or improve one) for the critical day.

Before the judges, consisting of Dr. Roscoe, Miss Munro, Miss Carmichael, Nora Altamas, and Eleanor Webster, each girl gave a solo version of M-C-G-I-L-I cheer. To the disappointment of certain male sports staffers who made history by gaining entrance to the RVC gym, there were no cartwheels! The first elimination immediately cut twenty girls, leaving four to be picked from the remaining eight.

The female attraction will accompany the team to the remaining out-of-town games, as well as cheer the fellas on to victory on the home front. Football fans and female fans certainly won't be disappointed with the cheering belles this Friday night.

Science Femmes Win Intramural Swim Meet

by CECILE KALIFON

The Women's Intramural Swim Meet held Tuesday night at the Currie gym saw Jane Walker capture individual honours by splashing to a win the butterfly with a 17.4 clocking and an 18.3 timing in the backstroke.

Four faculties led by Science with a total of 34 points were represented in the meet, the first half of an intramural speed and synchronized competition.
